IS IT TIME FOR A NEW CAR BATTERY?

The signs that your car or truck needs a new battery can be subtle: your engine takes a few extra seconds to start; your lights dim slightly when you turn on the heat or air conditioning; you notice corrosion on the battery terminals. If your vehicle is showing these symptoms, it may be time for a new car battery.

To learn more about car batteries, we spoke to Nick Kovalkevich, automotive battery expert and NAPA account executive for East Penn Manufacturing Co., Inc., a battery manufacturer and NAPA supplier. Kovalkevich discussed how to test, replace and maintain your vehicle's battery.

Kovalkevich also explained that, although your vehicle's battery may provide less energy in cold winter weather, heat is its main enemy. Heat speeds the chemical reaction that produces electricity inside a battery. As it does, it sheds the active material in the reaction and decreases the battery's ability to store energy.

"Heat is the biggest killer of batteries," Kovalkevich said. "In Arizona, you may get two years out of a battery. In Minnesota, the same battery may last five years."

Still, battery problems may present themselves in winter, when cold conditions slow that same chemical reaction and limit the energy, the battery can offer.

The best way to find out if your battery is on its way out is to have it tested. Your local NAPA AUTO PARTS can test your battery, and most will go out to your car so you don't have to remove it. The test will help you determine if you need a new battery, or if your vehicle has another electrical problem, such as a bad alternator.

If you do need a new car battery, you can replace it yourself, typically with just a few common tools. Kovalkevich provided a few tips to make the job safe and easy:

Wear gloves and eye protection

Never smoke or use an open flame around a car battery

Keep the battery upright

For late-model cars, use an OBDII memory saver while replacing the battery (avoid memory savers that use a 9-volt battery).

Clean the battery clamps and terminals and use terminal protectant spray.

Batteries are 100% recyclable, so return your old battery to your local NAPA store for recycling.

Winter Car Care Checklist

AAA suggests inspecting the following items for winter driving:

OIL Change your engine oil and oil filter at the intervals recommended by your car's manufacturer.

HEATER/DEFROSTER Check for proper system operation to ensure driver visibility and occupant comfort. Replace cabin air filter (where used) at intervals specified by your car's manufacturer.

ENGINE PERFORMANCE Have engine drivability problems corrected as soon as possible at a reputable repair shop.

BATTERY Batteries typically last three to five years, and failures are common in winter due to increased cold-starting electrical loads. If your battery is more than three years old, have it tested by a professional.

COOLING SYSTEM Flush and refill the cooling system with factory approved coolant at the interval specified by the manufacturer. (A 50/50 mix of coolant and water is usually recommended.)

LIGHTS Inspect all lights and replace any burned out bulbs. Have badly weathered plastic headlight lenses restored for better visibility and increased safety.

WINDSHIELD WIPERS Replace worn wiper blades and fill windshield washer system with winter formula solvent. If your climate is harsh, purchase beam-type or rubber-clad wiper blades that help prevent ice build-up.

EXHAUST SYSTEM Engine exhaust contains deadly carbon monoxide gas. Have your vehicle's exhaust system examined for leaks, and the trunk and floorboards inspected for small holes.

TIRES Have your tires rotated every 5,000–7,500 miles and check the pressure once a month when the tires are cold. If you live in a harsh winter environment consider a set of dedicated snow tires.
